

Marine kidnap & ransom

Product brochure
Worldwide

Overview

The global maritime watchdog recently reported that marine kidnappings reached a ten year high in 2016, seeing a threefold increase on the previous year. Across multiple shipping channels, marine piracy continues to be an issue and the increase in crew kidnappings for ransom is a particularly worrying trend. That's why we've designed a marine kidnap and ransom product for single vessels or fleets, specifically addressing the key piracy exposures faced by the maritime industry.

Coverage highlights

Extended personal accident benefit

Most other kidnap and ransom policies require death or dismemberment of a kidnap victim for the personal accident section to trigger. Our policy covers a wide range of bodily injuries, ensuring victims receive appropriate support.

Ransom in transit

Our policy doesn't just provide cover for ransom reimbursement, it also reimburses ransom which has been lost, damaged, destroyed, disappeared or confiscated whilst in approved transit.

Additional expenses

Our policy covers a wide range of additional expenses associated with a K&R event, including but not limited to negotiator costs, public relation costs, extra fuel costs, travel and accommodation costs, medical expenses, salary and repatriation costs.

Loss of hire

We reimburse the company up to an agreed amount for the loss of hire of an insured vessel during an insured event.

Legal liability

We will pay sums which you become legally obliged to pay as a result of a claim made against you by a covered victim. We also pay defence costs on behalf of the company.

24/7 Access to expert response consultants

CFC policyholders have access to global response consultant firms. Our cover provides access to a 24/7 emergency hotline in the event of an incident with no limit to consultant fees incurred.
